National Exhibition and Convention Center (Shanghai)

Introduction:

Currently, the climate agenda and the green and low-carbon development model have become the international community's top concerns, and major economies around the world have successively made the commitment to reaching carbon peak and achieving carbon neutrality. It is within this context that the development of green and low-carbon technologies is accelerating, trade and investment models and industrial upgrading are evolving at an accelerating pace. The session will focus on the impact of green development on global trade under climate change, inviting related guests to discuss opportunities and challenges brought by climate change and green development, outlook new prospects of international trade and investment, and better coordinate the implementation of global climate agenda targets, carbon peak and carbon neutrality commitments, and trade and investment growth.
